

Summary of Responses to UHills Website Wish List Survey

An invitation to participate was sent to (1) ICHA’s master list of contacts for all current residents, (2) posted to the community listserv, and (3) posted on the uhills.org website. A link to a draft specification for the envisioned website was also provided.

The following plots summarize the responses received. (We did not post multiple reminders, so this is a snapshot of the cross-section who reply the first time they are asked. ;-)

The results are useful in guiding our prioritization of various possible features. Thank you to everyone who participated in the survey. Those who volunteered to serve as advisors or beta testers will be contacted soon!

Suggestions/Comments/Feedback:

Be able to enter information for visitor parking passes for the apartment communities within UniHills. As of right now, we must go up to the community center to get a pass, which is inconvenient, and only open during business hours. Student housing is able to enter license plate information for visitors on the computer. It would be so helpful if we could do the same!
Please let users set their own passwords. I can never remember how to login so I don't use it. The most useful part for me is the contractor recs. It would be great if this and other features didn't require you to log in.
I'd like to have an area where locals can post availability for babysitting, dog walking etc
People should be prevented of using the webpage to advertise established businesses (like dental, roof repairs etc). It clutters the ad section
The most important feature is security because you require residents to be verified by their home address. Depending on the platform you use (joomla, wordpress, custom .net, etc), you may want to use a firewall (sucuri.net for example) as well as require users to create a secure password (with cap letter, symbol, etc.).
A link on the ICHA website to the residents' site would be helpful.
A community-only photo gallery of community events such as movie night would be good, but there are so many other options for individual photo galleries that UHills doesn't need one.
Home repair crises could/should be listed--like the number of slab leaks reported per month! (And who fixed them)
Security (user accounts and Mgmt) is very important. It's covered well in the draft specifications but why isn't it included here?
Keep it simple; many websites are unusable these days because they try to be all things to all people and rely on too many external scripts, etc.
I think the keep it simple stupid approach is best. The two things on the list serv that are to my mind should be separated from other posts are the freecycle and contractor recs. If those could be made as a web post area that is easy to both post and read apart from the list serv, that might be nice. The May I borrow your goat thing was a good idea, but too much trouble to navigate. Clearly many of our elderly readers do not have a deep well of tech skills so you should encourage the "least among us" to beta test changes. Actively recruit those posters that hit reply to add comments to list serv without deleting the text below (my pet aggravation). I would think that the list serv should be resident restricted (having read the draft).
Ability to list rooms available for rent by homeowners (date, room description, price, etc.) Daily digest (must accumulate emails and deliver only once per day at a time specified by user); Also please please please set up in such a way that users have to initiate a new conversation/inquiry by sending a new email - instead of responding to some old email on some completely unrelated subject; Also it's critical that the email digest can be read on a mobile phone. I currently cannot open the email digest attachments on my mobile phone. I get dozens of emails daily at work (I'm not a professor) and rarely turn on my home computer at the end of the day to view non-work emails. Sometimes I get UHills-related messages too late to respond. Also include linkage to ICHA Website Do not make having a Facebook page a requirement to sign in
I would suggest to consider adding a wiki providing documentation and how-tos for living in Uni Hills. The wiki should be visible and editable for residents only, and could complement a discussion forum, which is better suited for controversial topics. Right now I have to search the listserv for specific topics of interest, and many posts ask the same questions over and over again.
Ensure privacy. Residents should have the right to not be listed in the directory.
I would like to see just the emails and not the email chain that preceded it.
